

GOV. HORNER ATTACKED BY BOTH PARTIES

Abingdon Democrat is Especially Bitter in His Remarks

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Members of both parties joined in the house today in an attack on Governor Horner for a recent statement by him accusing them of delaying the social security program.

Frank McClure, Abingdon Democrat, rose to a point of personal privilege to start the attack. He quoted a news story from Springfield over which was the headline "Horner Scores General Assembly for Pension Delay."

LeRoy M. Green, Rockford, Republican floor leader, joined with McClure in asserting that it was "fortunate for the people of Illinois" that the legislature had not rushed through to enactment the program the governor supported.

"I rise to defend the general assembly as a whole," McClure said.

"Couldn't Be Worse."
"I have opposed the governor right along, but never with malicious intent. I have always encouraged myself with the thought that any change would be to make him better. It couldn't make him worse."

"And while he often has attacked me, I have borne it with the courtesy and patience due a grumbling old man pitifully misplaced."

McClure said a bill for an old age pension was passed last spring and asserted it was a good bill.

"That became the law last spring," he said. "That still is the law of the state. And as far as the governor knows there never will be another pension law."

But then McClure added, the governor began to talk of a special session to amend the law to make it conform with the federal program.

Changes Called "Slight."
"Every story carried the statement that the changes were but slight. Instead we completely revised the act. Now it is a pauper bill, the speaker of this house and the governor to the contrary notwithstanding."

McClure attacked the administration for its plans to pass a bill limiting the pensions more strictly than the present law on the grounds that it would take too much money without this limitation.

"It is easy to get money for the things you want. Next November we have an election, 11 months from today; and yet last month notices were sent out to the payrollers of this state that beginning in November, for the next 12 months, they would each one of them be required to give 5 per cent of each month's pay to build up a campaign fund for Henry Horner—God knows what money that will raise. Think He's Party."

"He thinks he is the party and he thinks with a salary of $10,000 a year, with every meal he eats furnished, without a child or a kith or a kin, that other old grand paps with four generations hanging on their coat tails, ought to live on a quarter a day and be glad to get the money."

"We're responsible that we did not pass that kind of a bill in two weeks."

"He wants a pension bill, but the governor doesn't want to pay. He wanted to be governor, but he didn't want to pay. But thank God that the day of reckoning is at hand and Henry Horner is going to have to pay."

State Senate Kills New Insurance Law

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 11.—(AP)—The Illinois Senate today killed the insurance code bill by a vote of 18 to 16 and leading legislators said there now was virtually no hope for such legislation at the special session.

It would have required 34 votes to pass the measure with an emergency clause. Many senators declined to vote and five of them voted "present."

CHARGE BRITAIN TRIES TO HALT SILVER POLICY

Accusation Made Following Collapse of the London Market

Washington, Dec. 11.—(AP)—While the treasury passed the word today that it was carrying out the silver-buying policy laid down by congress, one Democratic senator hinted that British financiers are trying to halt that policy.

Both statements were prompted by yesterday's collapse of the London silver market. Dispatches from financial centers said it was paralyzed by huge quantities of silver from the far east and by the treasury's apparent refusal to buy. The treasury, while insisting it was fulfilling the policy, turned thumbs down on "discussion of day to day developments."

From time to time, some critics have accused the treasury of abandoning the policy, which calls for purchases until 25 per cent of the government's monetary stock is composed of silver or until the price reaches $129 an ounce.

Will Be No Change

However, Senator Pittman (D-Nev.), prominent in the silver bloc, said in Reno last night that President Roosevelt has never considered changing the program and that all efforts to force its abandonment will fail.

"Economic and financial control in Great Britain," he said, "is violently opposed to the United States silver policy."

"These interests have continually attempted, through vast newspaper propaganda, to convince the Chinese that the policy was going to ruin them and that their only hope was to demonetize silver and go on a managed currency tied for stabilization purposes to the pound sterling."

"Leith Ross, financial adviser to the British government, went to China to consummate such a scheme. So far it has not been successful."

PRICE FIXED TODAY

London, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The price for silver was fixed at 27½ pence an ounce today, a decline of 1½ pence from the previous figure, after almost three hours delay while brokers awaited advances on the American silver policy.

No price was quoted on two months forward business. The silver crisis was reflected in closing prices of silver shares on the stock exchange, some leaders being down as much as a shilling. Gold shares were generally quiet.

The delay in fixing the silver price was the third in three days. No price was set yesterday.

Much Business

Brokerage offices were swamped with business after the two day stalemate.

Tension was eased noticeably when it was learned American had placed small buying orders.

Brokers said the extent of the American purchases could not be immediately estimated but that they were made only in the late afternoon market.

The only cash transactions involved some sellers who could not move all of their commitments.

Response to Pleas of the Goodfellows Coming in Very Slowly

If the Goodfellows of Dixon are to be able to do more than scratch the surface in their efforts to provide a little Christmas cheer for all of the needy children in Dixon this season the response on the part of more fortunate citizens will have to be manifold what it has been thus far and The Telegraph does not believe that the people of this community who are able to aid will permit Christmas to be a day of heart-breaks and sadness for countless little ones, whose cheerless outlook is in no way any fault of their own.

Engineer of Crack Train Dies in Cab

Watseka, Ill., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Just as the Chicago-bound C & E. I. crack passenger train, the "Dixie Flyer," roared into Watseka for its regular stop early today Engineer George V. Herren, 59, fell dead in the cab.

William Wusterholz, fireman, applied the brakes. Physicians said a heart attack killed Herren, who lived in Danville, Ill., and had worked on the line's Chicago division since 1903.

Wusterholz reported to the road's Chicago offices that Herren pulled the whistle at the usual spot and then remarked "that fire seems awful hot." Before Wusterholz could step across the cab the veteran engineer slumped from the seat back.

An engineer who was "read heading" took the train into Chicago.

Son of Ex-Tammany Leader Near Death

Saratoga Lake, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Twenty-two-year-old George Olivany, Jr., son of a former Tammany Hall political leader, remained in a critical condition today with a bullet wound in his head.

Despite reports from hospital officials that his condition remained "about the same" little hope was held for his recovery.

Olivany was found lying unconscious in the snow on the grounds of a deserted hotel near here early Tuesday. Beside Olivany was his 45-calibre automatic pistol. Two shots had been fired from it.

Agore (Kid Cann) Blumenfeld, upper left, reported Twin City gangster and subject of editorial attacks by Walter Liggett, crusading Minneapolis newspaper man, was identified this morning by Mrs. Liggett, shown above kneeling beside the body of her husband in the alley at the rear of their home, as his slayer. Blumenfeld, denies the killing, which was also witnessed by the victim's daughter, Marda, aged 10, upper right.

Minneapolis, Dec. 11.—(AP)—John Hilborn, supervisor of detectives, announced today Mrs. Walter Liggett had identified Isadore (Kid Cann) Blumenfeld, a liquor agent, as the slayer of her husband, crusading Minneapolis publisher.

Hilborn said she picked Blumenfeld out of a group of seven men at a showup in the Minneapolis city jail. He said she was "very cool" in making the identification. Blumenfeld has been held for questioning without charge since shortly after Liggett was slain Monday night at the rear of his apartment.

Earlier Al Marxen, captain of detectives, had quoted her as saying Blumenfeld was the man. She and her 11-year-old daughter were witnesses to the slaying.

Maintains Innocence
Blumenfeld, however, continued his innocence, maintaining he was in a downtown barbershop at the time of the crime occurred, 5:40 P. M., Monday.

A moment after she picked out Blumenfeld, said Hilborn, he retorted: "Oh, yes, you saw my picture in the paper."

Mrs. Liggett was recovered from her collapse yesterday.

Besides Hilborn, accompanying Mrs. Liggett to the showup were her brother-in-law, Robert Liggett of St. Paul; Joseph Granbeck, her attorney; Inspectors Andrew Crumney and Edward Comstock of the county attorney's office, and P. S. Nielsen, assistant county attorney.

Alibi Checked

James Mullen, captain of detectives, announced, however, that Blumenfeld's alibi witnesses have been checked and statements from them "check up pretty well with his alibi."

Meanwhile, Governor Floyd B. Olson, who with County Attorney Ed Goff, was among those frequently attacked in Liggett's paper, said he would sign a bill, if passed by the legislature, offering a reward for the capture of the publisher's slayers.

The Minnesota Law and Order League's Minneapolis branch was on record demanding action and criticizing "indifference" of authorities.

HAUPTMANN TO BE SENTENCED AGAIN TO DIE

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Attorneys for Bruno Richard Hauptmann speculated today on the next step in their struggle to save the condemned kidnap-slayer of the Lindbergh baby from the electric chair.

C. Lloyd Fisher, chief of Hauptmann's counsel, was not prepared to state definitely what his next move would be, awaiting the arrival of the Supreme Court record from Washington. This would enable Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard to rescind Hauptmann's sentence.

When this is done, Fisher said he would decide, with his aide in Hauptmann's defense, Egbert Rosecrans, on the next move.

Fisher conferred with Justice Trenchard yesterday on the probable resending date. The justice told him, he said, that it would take place "in due course of time." The expectation now is that this will be early next week.

NEW SYSTEM ACCOUNTING FOR COUNTY

Recommended by the Firm of Auditors in Report to Board

Radical changes in bookkeeping methods now employed by officials of Lee County were recommended in the report of Lybrand, Ross Brothers & Montgomery, auditors, this morning when John W. Conrad and C. E. Wood of the accounting firm reported to the Lee county Board of Supervisors in an executive session.

Presenting a semi-detailed audit of every office in the court house, which the county board received and approved, the necessity of revolutionary changes in the accounting systems now in use in county offices was shown. The old, out-of-date methods now in use were discussed and improvements in those offices handling considerable money were recommended.

The audit, which was completed on November 30, differed materially with the audit previously made in respects other than the many recommendations for improvement which it contained.

Chairman Satisfied
Chairman William F. Burhenn of the County Board declared that he was extremely well satisfied with the results shown by the audit and particularly gratified by the recommendations made for improvements in the system. He said, "Every county official who assumed office has inherited a bookkeeping system which has been handed down from office holder to office holder and during the term of his office he has made certain improvements made necessary by changes in the law."

Consequently, at the present time there exists a great duplication of records in each office handling the county's money as well as many unnecessary records which are costly in their maintenance. This audit, which was authorized by the board and which cost the county approximately $400, will save it's cost over this year and will forever eliminate the necessity of a general audit but in the future will save the audit in a real period. This, in my opinion, is the correct practice, fair to both the tax-payer and the official, and one which will save the county considerable expense. I favor making the change recommended and believe a great saving has been made in having this detailed audit."

What Auditors Said
Conrad and Wood, in making their report to the board, said substantially as follows:

The audit of eight county offices, commenced some two months ago by Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery, a well-known firm of certified public accountants, has now been completed and the auditors have submitted their reports to the county board of supervisors.

The audit reports, in addition to determining the proper fund balances in the treasurer's office, and verifying the transactions of other county offices, extensive comments upon the inadequacy of the present accounting system in most of the county offices. So many instances were noted by the auditors of errors,

DANCER KILLED MARRIED ESCORT AND THEN SELF

Chicago, Dec. 11.—(AP)—M. Lillian Mann, 32, a fan dancer in night clubs and taverns, and William B. Weir, 40, were found shot to death last night in an automobile in suburban Blue Island.

Police Lieutenant Stuart J. Hall said he believed that Miss Mann shot Weir, a tavern keeper, and herself. A cloth handbag with two bullet holes, and a pistol inside, was found on the young woman's lap. This led police to theorize she placed her hand in the bag to fire the two fatal shots.

The bodies were found behind the home of George Webber for whom Miss Mann had been acting as a housekeeper during illness of Mrs. Webber.

Miss Mann formerly lived in Evanston, Ill. Weir was married and the father of a ten-year-old son.

THE QUESTION.
By Joseph Fort Newton.

UNAMUNO, the Spanish philosopher, says there is one human question, and only one. Just one basic anxiety, one and the same for all men, and we never feel it more deeply than when we are alone.

Each day, he says, he believes less and less in the social question, in the political question—he who helped to form the Spanish revolution!—in the aesthetic question, which men make ado about.

All these questions, he insists, are invented in order that we shall not have to face resolutely the only real question that exists for us—the human question, yours, mine and every other man who is man.

The human question, he adds, is the question—what is to become of that within us which thinks, dreams, loves, hopes, fears, suffers, prays and longs, after each one of us has died? Does it just go out and end?

So long as we are not facing it, he tells us, all we are doing—going places, working feverishly, piling up money or seeking power—is simply making a noise so we shall not hear it.

And that is why we fear solitude so much and huddle together in company—to get away from the haunting question, for which we have no answer; we are running away from the shadow that pursues us.

It is all very well to pretend to be indifferent, but it is only a dodge. Even dodging the question does things to us. It implies a slump in our own sense of value, and that slowly and surely lets us down.

No doubt that is what is the matter with us today. A great physician said recently we cannot have subconscious health without faith in the immortal life—it hurts far.

By the same token, if we lose back and deep down.

faith in our own value, our sense of the value and rights of others slumps, too. The basis of the state and of the home is undermined—the music of life drops to a lower octave.

If we are only for a day and then done for, everything is different. We either lose interest and rest, or snatch frantically at life as it flies, and that is very much the spirit and mood of the day.

December Meeting For G. S. Leaders

The Girl Scout leaders held their December meeting Monday evening at the Wilhelm cottage near Grand Detour. Louise Troutwein gave an informal talk about "Christmas Handicraft" and had many samples of work to illustrate her talk.

It was very interesting and helpful for everyone there. The roll call and minutes followed. There were thirteen members present.

The business session was turned over to Dorothy Hardy. Several important matters were discussed including the arrangements for Christmas carolling. Refreshments were enjoyed around the fireplace. The meeting ended with a grab bag which was a source of enjoyment for all.

SPECIAL PROGRAM AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH—

A special program has been prepared for the service at St. Paul's Lutheran church at 7:30 o'clock this evening, and the pastor is urging members of the church and their friends to attend.

Seven Chapters of War Mothers in District Meeting Here

Lee County Chapter American War Mothers, Mrs. Eliza Brand, president, assisted Mrs. Clea T. Bunnell, state president, in holding a get-together meeting of the Northern Illinois chapters, in Dixon, Friday, Dec. 6th in the G. A. R. hall. Because of the weather several chapters were not represented, there were however members from seven chapters in attendance.

Mrs. Brand, local president called the meeting to order, following the usual ritual form. The state president was then introduced to the platform, introduced by Mrs. Brand, who presented her with a beautiful bouquet of flowers from the local chapter, Mrs. E. Strub, acting as sergeant-at-arms, and Mrs. Mayme Atkins and Mrs. Lucy B. Eastman, acting as color bearers. The state officers present, also the past state presidents were then conducted to the platform and introduced. Chapter president and visitors, and the local chapter, and visitors were introduced by the state president.

Mrs. Lucy R. Eastman presented Mrs. Bunnell with a beautiful gift of love which is greatly prized by Mrs. Bunnell.

Mayor Slothower was present and welcomed the War Mothers very graciously. The Spanish-American War Veterans was represented by Joe Robinson; the V. F. W. by the commander, Eustace Wilson. Both welcomed the gathering to Dixon and wished them a most successful meeting. Mrs. Della Ambler, first state vice president, Evanston, and Mrs. Gertrude Carey, past state president, Joliet, responded to these greetings.

The president and first vice president of the American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. Clara Traynor, and Mrs. Emma Phalen brought greetings and welcome, and a very lovely gift to the state president. Mrs. Bunnell expressed her thanks and appreciation for the gift, good wishes and co-operation.

Mrs. Belle Woods, president of the Evanston Chapter was appointed secretary.

At the lunch hour a very bountiful luncheon was served in the Lutheran dining room by the Sunshine class and all felt refreshed after the excellent and plentiful serving.

The afternoon session was called to order without form, Mrs. Bunnell in the chair. The state hospital chairman, Mrs. Alice Shinkle, Rainbow Chapter, Chicago, gave a report of the work done by the War Mothers of the state at Hines, Jr. hospital, Maywood, and more especially at the Oak Forest T. B. sanitarium and Oak Forest Infirmary where nine mothers of ex-service men are housed, some too ill to be moved, others whose sons, on relief, are unable to care for their mothers.

Several ex-service men are in the T. B. sanitarium until they can be transferred to U. S. hospitals. Mrs. Shinkle has a room at Oak Forest where she stores supplies until needed, using these supplies for patients who need special care and food. The War Mothers of Illinois make a specialty of providing one hot meal per week to these ex-service men, having it brought from a near by restaurant to those who are unable to go after it, and holidays also are taken care of, so that all enjoy a real treat. Mrs. Shinkle provides necessities and dainties to the mothers as they are needed.

It was suggested by Mrs. Roberts, president of the Col. Chas. A. Young chapter, Chicago, that a Valentine shower (from the heart) be given by each chapter and thus help provide for the unfortunate at Oak Forest.

Mrs. Lola Price, Evanston, past state president and Americanization chairman, made a plea for more loyalty to our flag. Mrs. Mary L. Stewart, Evanston, read letters concerning the magazine, and first vice president, Mrs. Ambler, Evanston also finance chairman, called attention to the financial needs and urged greater assistance along these lines. Mrs. Lucy Eastman state corresponding secretary and emblem and marker chairman gave the November report, showing many hospitalization funds sent in, and that Illinois stands third in the national work of hospitalization as reported at the national convention held in Washington, D. C.

The mid-year assessment was stressed and the many needs of the state and national organization shown.

As many were from a distance and wished to return early, the meeting closed in the usual form and with the closing song "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," all expressing great satisfaction and enjoyment of the meeting and congratulating the local chapter.

Lee County Chapter with the state president wish to express their thanks and appreciation to all who helped to make this meeting a success and they feel well repaid for the effort made.

Meeting of Missionary Circle Enjoyed

The Missionary Circle of the Brethren church had an enjoyable time at the home of Mrs. Edward Myers at 711 West First street last night. There were thirty in attendance and the very spirit of the meeting was uplifting and helpful.

Edith McWethy, president of the Circle, had charge of the business. Lillie McClain led the devotions. It was decided to give five dollars more to the furnace fund. This makes fifteen dollars that the Circle has given to this fund. Mary Utz led the group in a number of pep songs, "Della Butterbaugh had a reading, "Making Gifts for Christmas." Mary Utz and her daughter Garland sang a duet, Rose Mary McClain gave a reading and Edith McWethy gave a book report. It had been whispered around that this meeting was being held on Mrs. McWethy's birthday and she received a shower of handkerchiefs to remind her of her birthday and also in appreciation of her efficient service as president of the Missionary Circle. The grab bag caused a great deal of excitement as each one fished for a present. Delightful refreshments were served after which all said good by, thanked Mrs. Myers and went to their homes.

Meeting of Am. Legion Auxiliary Was One of Inspiration

The regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary was held Dec. 6th in the American Legion hall with a splendid attendance of members. The regular opening was followed by several reports of the different chairman and special mention was the one of the rehabilitation. Sixty pounds of carpet rags has been sent to the North Chicago hospital and a donation of $5.00 was given for the Christmas fund.

The all day meeting held at the home of Kathryn Gardner was another of those busy days for the Auxiliary members and much work was accomplished. The National Defense chairman had secured Attorney Elwin Bunnell to give a talk on "Americanism," which was filled with enthusiasm and much food for thought. A vote of thanks was extended to him for his splendid talk.

No report of the child welfare or community service was given. Dorothy Teschendorff gave a report on the business men's dinner and Dec. 21st was decided for the date. This will be served in the Legion hall and will be served from 5 until 7 o'clock and the Auxiliary hopes to realize a profit to carry on the work that is mapped out for them by the National and Department units.

The children in the surrounding orphanages will be remembered at Christmas as well as several ex-service men. One dollar a month was subscribed for department child welfare work.

After the close of the meeting, the commander of the American Legion, Fred Ruben, assisted by Mr. Sterling, showed the moving picture of the parade of the National convention held in St. Louis. This was very much appreciated.

Mrs. Clarence Burke Is Again Honored

Last evening Mrs. Jack Malay and Miss Lucille Stauffer delightfully entertained at dinner and bridge and a miscellaneous shower for Mrs. Clarence Burke, nee Edith Ayres.

The pretty decorations were in pink and blue with a lovely floral centerpiece of chrysanthemums for the dinner table. The tallies for bridge also were in pink and blue. Mrs. Burke was fortunate in winning the favor for high score. Mrs. Ed Gehant won the favor for second high and Mrs. Robert Ayres, mother of the guest of honor, won the consolation favor.

A kitchen shower had been planned for Mrs. Burke, and she received many gifts for the kitchen and also many other gifts, so it is better termed a miscellaneous shower. The entire evening was one of much enjoyment for all.

WARLIKE TOYS FOR BOYS

Certain peacefully-inclined individuals who object to war-like toys for children are proceeding without investigation of the facts.

Objection to such toys as miniature artillery, tanks, pop guns and lead soldiers is based upon the following allegations: First, the boys are likely to have formed within them the desire to become soldiers; second, such toys tend to glorify warfare, and third, there is formed a familiarity with death-dealing instruments that tends to deaden moral sensibilities.

None of these statements is true, although the theories may sound plausible. The facts deny it.

During the World War the United States enlisted 4 million men for service. Not since the war have we heard it suggested that any of these men were impelled to serve because they had played as children with regiments of tin soldiers. Some of the men served with the idea that they were going to give some service to humanity. Others donned the uniform in the same spirit with which we pay taxes; merely a distasteful job, but necessary. The outstanding hero of the war, Sgt. Alvin York, was a pacifist until he became angry one day at the front and demoralized a whole section of the German army single-handed. But suppose playing with warlike toys does generate a desire to be a soldier. What of it? A soldier is only another form of policeman.

There is not the slightest evidence that warlike toys tend to glorify warfare. The average boy playing with such toys is likely to have more intelligence than his elders suspect. No matter how much he may be wrapped up in his play, he knows what he is doing. He makes his battles as sanguinary as possible. He slays by battalions, but he always resurrects his troops. Children are not as easily impressed as that. How many parents spend years trying to glorify the medical profession, for example, in the eyes of a son, only to have him become a civil engineer, a lawyer, a school teacher or perhaps a vagabond? And what if the toys should glorify war? We consider the soldiers who defended their homes in such battles as Watnool, the struggles on the Marne and elsewhere did perfectly glorious work. The Union troops who preserved the Union were not regiments of criminals, but prevented the dissolution of the United States.

It never has been proved that playing with warlike toys tends to dull a boy's sensibilities. Criminal lawyers defending killers have resorted to a great many expedients to blame circumstances for the plight in which their clients find themselves. Some of the boys had a bad fall in childhood or infancy and bumped their heads; others had insane ancestors; others were declared to be of unsound mind themselves. The classic examples were the Chicago boys, Leopold and Loeb, who slew Bobby Franks for a thrill. In their trial mention was made of their childhood toys. Was anything said about tin soldiers? As we remember it, their Teddy bears had a malign influence. What criminal lawyer, even one who had no apparent defense, ever blamed tin soldiers and toy cannon for a murder?

It really makes no difference to the boys whether they get tin soldiers for Christmas or not. They will play as readily with steam engines, toy automobiles or construction sets. This is not an advertisement for military toys. The intention is to dispel pacifistic twaddle.

THE FARM WALLOP

"Any reduction in Canada's tariff on American almonds offers no help to California almond growers in gaining the Canadian market as Mediterranean almonds enter Canada too cheaply and California can not compete without protection either in Canada or in American markets against foreign peasant produced products," said T. C. Tucker, manager of the California Almond Growers' Exchange, a marketing organization. "So-called concessions by Canada appear to mean little or nothing so far as the Canadian market is concerned, as in the final analysis conditions in Canada are the determining factor. California almonds are now as tightly shut out of Canada as they were before."

"It seems unthinkable that agricultural products from a predominant foreign agricultural area should be permitted to enter the United States to add to the burden of a distressed American agriculture."

"That the Canadian pact must be ratified by the Canadian parliament offers a timely suggestion that our trade pacts be not effective until approved by congress."

Giving Californians the Canadian almond market in exchange for the New England farm produce market, then, appears much like giving us the Canadian coconut and coffee market in exchange for our farm produce market. We can't use it.

FADS IN WORDS

"Smart" writers now are over-working the word "nostalgia." If a writer can get the word into an article, it sort of labels him as of the writing "smart set." Last preceding "smart" word was "naive." It was given a terrible workout.

Just before that, every act was a "gesture" of some kind. That was more a word of the political orators and the luncheon speakers than a fad of the writers, but it took up its share of the newspaper columns over a period of three or four years. The same persons used to "stress" everything. It was almost impossible to get out a newspaper without somebody having "stressed" something, but it has been some time since it has been an essential part of our publications.

If we writers can not be stylish in clothes, at least we may keep up with styles in words.

THE TINYMITES

One of the little elves cried, "Hey, how come you landed here today? No little girls or boys are s'posed to come to this strange spot. 'We hate to make you youngsters grieve, but we must tell you, now, to leave. There's work that we must do, oh such an awful lot!"

"Just wait a minute, I implore," said Scouty. "We've been here before. We know that this is Santa's home, and he's a busy man."

"He will remember us, I'm sure, unless his memory's very poor. You see, we've come to Toyland just to help out all we can."

The elves into a huddle went and then one funny little elf said, "I remember them. They were a wondrous help last year."

"They are the band of Tinymites who travel 'round to see the sights. I'm certain our boss, Santa Claus, will be real glad they're here."

Another elf replied, "Okay! Let's greet them in a friendly way." And then they shouted to the Tinies, "We are glad you've come. 'Our work, before next Christmas day, must all be cleared out of the way. All of you Tinymites look strong enough to handle some."

The Tinies gave a happy cheer, and Goldy said, "Is Santa near? We'd like to say hello to him, he's such a jolly sort."

"Why, yes, but first you'll meet Jack Frost. He'll make sure that you don't get lost," replied an elf. "He'll help you have a lot of real good sport."

Then Scouty walked up to the swan and very loudly cried, "Be-gone! Fly right back to your master. We won't need you any more."

The big bird flapped its wings a bit. Then Doty shouted, "Look at it! It's hauling, now, an empty sled. It sure knows how to soar." Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc. (The Tinies go to the toy palace with Jack Frost in the next story.)

The new Scout executive has been successful in his work as leader of the Topeka council. He is rated as one of the most outstanding executives in Boy Scout work in the nation. OREGON SOLON TO INTRODUCE A RELIEF BILL

Three Point Farmer Relief Bill to Replace AAA

Washington, Dec. 11—(AP)—Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican leader in the Senate, has announced he would introduce on the opening day of Congress a three-point farm relief bill as a basis for a "natural transition from the AAA to a long-time program."

Whether this will be the plan ultimately pushed by the Republican party to vie with the Democratic AAA for votes in 1936 remains to be seen.

But McNary hopes it will be at least a starter for consideration by Congress in event the Supreme Court invalidates the agricultural adjustment act. Then, both parties will be looking for a substitute and McNary wants to be prepared.

Optional Control

Unlike the AAA which sets crop limits for farmers involved in control programs and gives them cash for taking land out of production, the McNary bill seeks indirectly to control surpluses by the optional application of either the equalization fee, export debenture or domestic allotment plans.

McNary realizes this is nothing new, but he feels "there is a lot of good in the old bill yet."

It is the same proposal he put forward in 1932. The plan, supporters say, aims to segregate the surplus for export, assist in making the tariff effective on crops, control surpluses by penalizing over-production and stimulate cooperative marketing.

Under the equalization fee plan, the government would take charge of surpluses, which would be sold abroad at the best figures obtainable. The idea would be to raise domestic prices of the crops by removing surpluses.

Automatic Set-Up

Farmers would be assessed a fee to make up for losses and charges incurred in sales abroad.

The government would aim to discourage any over-production by an automatic set-up in the fee.

The export debenture involves a Federal appropriation or bounty.

Exporters of surpluses would receive treasury certificates amounting to one-half the tariff on the similar imported product. Other debenture rates would be established for commodities on the free list, such as raw cotton.

Under the domestic allotment plan, all handlers of farm products would be licensed. It seeks to force domestic prices up by requiring handlers to purchase that portion of a crop necessary for domestic use at a price not less than the average cost of production for the year. Violators would lose their licenses.

Fraternity Barred by Arkansas Varsity

Payetteville, Ark., Dec. 11—(AP)—Invitation of a mixed student house party the night of Nov. 15 led University of Arkansas trustees to bar Sigma Nu fraternity indefinitely and take over employment of all fraternity and sorority house mothers today.

Trustees approved the expulsion of eight students, unidentified, by the university discipline committee.

The action, announced by President J. C. Futrell, climaxed the inquiry into an affair at the Sigma Nu house on the eve of the university's homecoming celebration.

COMPTON NEWS

By FAYE ARCHER

COMPTON—A request program arranged by the chairmen of the several departments of the organization provided varied entertainment at the December meeting of the Compton Woman's club held in the church basement Monday evening.

A summarization of what is being done in each department was given by the chairmen. Mrs. Maxine Gilmore, fine arts chairman presented the Woman's club chorus under the direction of Mrs. C. L. Ogilvie. The group dressed in corresponding costumes sang Spanish, Portuguese, German, Polish, English and Italian Christmas carols.

The chairman of the citizenship department, Miss Esther Haefer, had made arrangements for Mrs. Carrie Montavon to speak of her recent trip through the west. Mrs. Montavon spoke graphically of the Band Lands, Black Hills, and the Grand Canyon. Mrs. Dee Thompson, district chairman of education was presented by Mrs. H. M. Chaon of public welfare department and explained the educational measures to be considered by the state legislature during its session. Mrs. Chaon reported that fourteen boys have joined the Boy Scout troop sponsored by the club and are working to pass the Tenderfoot requirements.

Mrs. Faye Archer, publicity chairman spoke briefly of the work of that department displaying the scrap book made of the press notices of the club meetings and projects carried out by the club.

It was reported by the membership chairman, Mrs. Marie Miller that eleven new names had been added to this year's membership.

Mrs. Frieda Zimmerman, chairman of American home displayed articles for last minutes Christmas gift suggestions.

Hostesses were: Mrs. Frieda Zimmerman, Mrs. Lulu Richardson, Mrs. Mildred Olson, and Mrs. Catherine Schuckel.

A family night was announced for the January meeting, Monday evening, Jan. 13th at which time Senator T. P. Gunning, Princeton will deliver the address.

Boy Scout News

In the very near future the new Scout troop which has been formed in Compton under the sponsorship of the local Woman's Club is expected to receive its charter from official headquarters since all necessary requirements have been met. Eight boys, Raymond Cook, Guy Mireley, Orley Daw, George A. Richardson, Art Eddy, Billy Davis, Ted Nelson and Dale Archer have completed their Tenderfoot requirements and are now working to become second class Scouts. Several other boys will have completed their requirements for the rank of Tenderfoot within the next few days.

Grover Carnahan, Gus Englehart, John Florschutz, Arlo Gilmore, Joe Kaufman, Lloyd McDonald attended the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation held in Chicago Monday at which President Roosevelt spoke in defense of the AAA program.

Several members of the Compton Woman's club are planning to attend the showing of "Anna Karenina" at Mendota Thursday evening. This story was reviewed at the November meeting of the club.

On Wednesday night, December 4 Compton high school played its first home game of the season against Creston high and came out of the skirmish on the short end of 89-9. Creston's high was composed entirely of juniors who were experienced and well seasoned to the game while the Compton boys for the most part are playing their first year of basketball and are wanting in skill which comes from lengthy participation in the game. By hard work and drill we are hoping that the local boys will show signs of improvement from game to game.

In the second team game Creston easily emerged victorious by a score of 41-6. The game was well attended and eighteen mothers who were given complimentary tickets for the first home game were present.

The flag project sponsored by the Compton Woman's Club will be realized Friday afternoon at 2:30 P. M. at the Compton gym when new flags purchased by the club will be presented to seven neighboring rural schools and Compton public school. The presentation will be made by Miss Esther Haefer, chairman of the citizenship department of the club to the teachers of the various schools who will be present with their pupils. A short program will also be given to which every one is invited.

Lad's Plea to Governor Saves Dad

Because Gov. James V. Allred of Texas has a little "partner" of his own in his 6-year-old son, he could understand the devotion that made George W. Nottly take his son from Port Huron, Mich., to El Paso and keep him there despite court award of the child's custody to the mother. After 8-year-old George, Jr., shown here with the governor, had pleaded, "Daddy and me are partners, you know," Allred refused Michigan's request for Nottly's extradition on a kidnapping charge.

Increased Scarlet Fever, Pneumonia Predicted in Ill.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 11—(AP)—A sharp increase in scarlet fever and pneumonia in Illinois during the "next few weeks" was predicted today by the state health department.

Respiratory diseases jumped to the highest level of the season last week and health officers looked for a continued rise. New cases included: Scarlet fever 512, pneumonia 371, whooping cough 213.

A decline in diphtheria was predicted. "Epidemic meningitis and perhaps influenza may increase substantially," the department reported. "An epidemic wave of measles during the late winter and spring is unlikely."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

YAWKEY MACK OPEN LEAGUE BARGAIN OGRY

Connie is Selling Tal- ent, Yawkey Buy- ing It

Chicago, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The biggest spender baseball has ever known, young Tom Yawkey, and the game's greatest auctioneer, playing talent, venerable Connie Mack, have combined to turn the annual major league meetings into the most frantic bargaining session in history.

Another broadside from Yawkey's huge bankroll yesterday, which brought Jimmy Fox from St. Louis to his Boston Red Sox from Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, touched off the struggle over the balance of American League power. The deal, involving two Boston players and cash estimated at $150,000, was hardly announced before the world champion Detroit Tigers were actively involved.

Seeing the balance of power flowing heavily toward Boston, the Tigers quit haggling with the Chicago White Sox over price and quickly completed a cash deal for outfielder Al Simmons. Manager Mickey Cochrane, exercising his authority as vice-president of the Tigers, gave the Sox a bundle of banknotes said to amount to $75,000 for Simmons, another of Mack's former star pupils.

The two deals appeared to have stirred every other club in the league into vigorous efforts to add strength. The New York Yankees, perennial contenders for the title, and the Cleveland Indians, sorely disappointed over failure to win the pennant last year, were not the least active.

Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees a week ago said his club was pretty well set and that no great efforts to deal would be made. However, with the Tigers and Red Sox definitely strengthened by their transactions, the Yankees were reported to be out for a big attempt to coax Mack out of third baseman Pinky Higgins, and to make any other sort of advantageous deal.

The feeling among wise baseball men was that Mack hasn't finished selling. It was reliably reported that he already has, or will take another $200,000 bite out of the Yawkey bankroll in exchange for infielder Eric McNair and outfielder Roger (Doc) Cramer, both highly regarded performers.

In yesterday's dealing, Mack obtained Pitcher Gordon (Dusty) Rhodes and George Savino, a rookie catcher, along with the Boston check.

To Be Announced Later
If the McNair-Cramer sale to Boston goes through, and it was said it will be announced in January, the sale and trade market probably will not close until every club has exhausted every possibility of a strengthening deal. The White Sox, noting at close range—from the Chicago Cubs—what development of youngsters may bring about, are out to spend the $75,000 obtained for Simmons on kids. Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Browns also was around with the expression of someone about to do something surprising.

Under cover of the heavy firing on the market front, the National League disposed of the Boston Braves problem by turning control of the club over to Robert Quinn, recent general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Charles Francis Adams, former controlling stockholder, will have nothing to do with operation of the franchise. Quinn having been moved in as president and general manager for the stockholders, Quinn will be expected to reimburse Adams for the money he has put into the Braves, said to be $325,000.

The senior league also expressed its satisfaction with Ford Frick, who served his first term as president last year, by signing him to another two-year contract at a reported increase in salary.

Amboy and Princeton were tied 6 to 6 at the conclusion of the first period but the Scarlets held a 16-10 half time lead. Powers led the scoring for Amboy by totalling 11 points while Campbell with 12 points starred for Princeton.

PROF. WOULD PAY COLLEGE STARS FOR FOOTBALL

Charges Colleges Are Exploiting All Athletes

Boston, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Stoutly advocating out-and-out payment of college athletes, Professor Geo. Owens, Sr., of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, today apologized to the president of Notre Dame "if any statement of mine is untrue."

Owens contended a large percentage of colleges were exploiting their athletes for their own financial gain, and was quoted as accusing Notre Dame and Ohio State of being the "greatest offenders."

He told The Associated Press he wired an apology to the Rev. Fr. John F. O'Hara, president of Notre Dame, today, and quoted the wire as follows:

"I seem to have been badly misquoted. If any statement of mine is untrue, I deeply apologize and regret any misunderstanding."

Owens, a professor of naval architecture at Tech and father of a famous Harvard football star of 12 years ago, bluntly insisted college athletes be openly paid in a speech before the Cambridge Industrial Association yesterday.

No Direct Charges
"I did not make any specific charges. I merely expressed an opinion based on my own observations and after discussions with others."

"If I did have any hot shot, I was aiming at the whole system. There is a growing belief in the colleges themselves they should come out in the open and pay their athletes cash in hand."

"Get away from the silly methods of having a boy risk his life for 100,000 howling spectators just for dear old alma mater."

Although the Rink's Coalers dropped their first game in Industrial league competition they proved a harder fighting outfit than most people expected. No one took the Rink's seriously, not even themselves. That probably accounted for the surprising number of field goals they actually made. On free throws they converted five out of eight tries, but lost the game 31 to 19, to the Beiers.

The Beiers built up a 5 to 0 lead in the first period before Johnson gave his team their first point on a free throw. In the opening frame the Rink's made four out of five free tries, Johnson getting three, and Brown one.

Beiers Get Lead
Boyd's two baskets and a field goal each by Roundy and Hasselberg put the Beiers ahead 9 to 4 at the conclusion of the first period. They built this lead up to a 15 to 7 count at half time.

Johnson sank the Rink's only points on two baskets in the third period the Beiers holding a 24-11 advantage as the game went into the final stanza. In the last period the Rink's held their own by outscoring the champions 8 to 7. Although Bellows ran amuck by scoring nine points in the frame adding them onto three others he had obtained earlier for a total of 12, the Rink's were practiced enough to gather in eight points of their own, all legitimate baskets. Bovey rang up a pair, Freeman sank one from the side and Paddy McDonald also swished one in from the southwest corner as he rushed down the sideline.

Beiers Conquer Rinks 31-19; Knacks Eke Out Win 24-23 Over I. N. U.

Shire Drops in Winn- ing Goal Last Second

At the end of the second week of Industrial league basketball play only the Beiers remain undefeated and in sole possession of first place. Two games were played again Tuesday night in which the defending champions squelched the Rink's Coalers 31 to 19 and the Knacks Leaders in a last quarter packed with thrills snatched a 24-23 victory from the I. N. U. quint on Shire's Miller's last second field goal.

In the first period of the Knacks-I. N. U. game neither team exhibited a scoring punch. Eddie Grove broke the ice by sinking a goal and E. Lebre, playing guard for the Utilities gave the Electricians a 4 to 6 lead before Fane sank a free throw just before the quarter ended making the count 4-1 for the I. N. U.

The Knacks came back with a rush in the second period with the I. N. U. leading 7 to 2 the Blues rallied and McIntyre dropped in a close-in shot for the tying bucket 5-5 after which he gave his team a brief lead 7-5 before Eddie Grove deadlocked the count again 7-7. The Knacks snatched a 9-7 lead at half time when Slim Mansfield scored a goal.

Slim Hits Ring
The Knacks and Mansfield opened up in the third frame outscoring their rivals 10 to 2. Mansfield ran wild adding three more field goals and two free throws as the Knacks took a substantial 15-7 lead, but the I. N. U. started feeding the ball to Lebre who suddenly experienced a rapidly rising temperature as far as the bucket was concerned and his mates rallied. The I. N. U. pulled up to a 19-15 score as the game went into the fourth quarter.

A sudden burst of speed on the part of the I. N. U. in the final stanza kept the game going at nip and tuck pace. The Knacks had again built up a seemingly safe 22-15 lead when E. Lebre suddenly bombarded the hoop with deadly accuracy. His last field goal placed the Utilities five one point ahead 23-22 with only half a minute to play. Instead of stalling however, the I. N. U. men paid for their mistake by losing the ball to Shire's Miller who delivered the winning basket from the side and well out on the floor.

Former Dixonite Writes Entertaining of Labor and Pleasures in Japan

Rev. Percy Smith is Son of One-Time Schools' Head

The Telegraph is in receipt of the following very interesting letter from Rev. Percy Smith, missionary-educator to Japan, and son of the late E. C. Smith, once head of Dixon's school system, for whom the E. C. Smith school is named:

Hikone, Japan.

Dear Friends:
I have been trying to get at this job for some time but spare minutes seem scarce and what is worse every few days something else comes along to be put in and that makes it longer. It is like paying compound interest!

The first thing to be said is that we are both well and working, most, though not all, of our waking hours. We have not ordered our coffin yet, and don't expect to for some time. Mrs. Smith keeps going with her local and diocesan W. A. (she spoke at the local meeting less than an hour ago). She was also elected one of the four speakers chosen by a vote of the workers of the diocese, as "Home Missionaries," who go at the call of any church within the diocese. There are three or four such groups, and she is the only missionary in the lot, the rest all being Japanese. Just at present she is working on a pamphlet giving more information about the work of the Japanese Board of Missions.

As for myself, not long after the last of these letters went, I was appointed on a committee to go to the educational authorities of this prefecture and ask them what steps they were going to take to carry out the new policy of the national Department of Education which is now urging the schools to have lectures on religion. It is not mandatory, but the idea is that such lectures in secondary schools would be a great moral help. We were sent to find out the local plans and to offer our services if they were wanted.

The reply was that they were still up in the air. If they had lectures on any one religion, there would be a row raised by others, and lectures on religion in general would be useless. Both these statements were true and the committee left feeling that there was not much to be done. However, the officials had given one idea.

I wrote to a former student of mine when I was in a government school, a Christian, now principal of a boy's high school near Kobe, asking if he thought that if I went to schools where my old students were teaching and spoke, explaining Christianity, there would be any serious objection. I also said I would be willing to give a short talk in English if it was wanted, tho' my main talk must be in Japanese so the boys would understand it. His reply was that there was no need to confine it to such schools, as any school would welcome me, and he ended by offering to make arrangements for me if I would come to that prefecture.

So, the first part of June I went. I spoke in four government and one private school (4 boys' and 1 girl) and had other requests that I could not take. I spoke for 30 minutes in Japanese, explaining simply the fundamental ideas of Christianity such as our belief in God as personal, as our Father, our need of Him, and Christ as His revelation of Himself to us. Then, to please the boys and girls, I went over the same ground in simple English. In some cases I was asked to speak to a smaller group of the older boys again, and in those cases I talked on Bible reading and prayer.

It was a new experience for me, for though I have often spoken in such schools, I have always been careful to observe the old rule which excluded all religion. I felt really embarrassed the first time, but after that it went right along.

Meanwhile this idea reached others and invitations from two other prefectures came. One I responded to in July, going to two boys' schools and the other I begin on next week with six schools on the schedule and others under consideration. As I leave the details to whoever is making the arrangements, I don't know exactly what is ahead till I get there.

All this is an entirely new move on the part of the Department of Education, and of course Buddhists and others are also invited to speak in the same way. Nor am I the only Christian doing this kind of work, for several strong Japanese speakers are doing something of the same thing.

The remarks of some of the principals are very interesting. They say that they would like to have such talks more often, but if they call in a local Japanese pastor, he tries to draw the students to his church, and that makes trouble. If they ask a missionary, he takes a text or a parable and explains it not realizing that the boys have not the slightest conception of what he means when he says, e. g. God. It was something like this that made the principal who made those first arrangements say in one of his letters, "Please do not talk like a missonary." Here is where my government normal college work has helped, and I feel sure that God led me that way for this and similar work.

Over against this favorable turn must be placed the strong current of materialism that is now making itself apparent, the result of 50 years of definitely anti-religion education in the schools. Science has robbed Shinto of all its religious content, and it comes up now as an ultra-patriotic, materialistic cult even though it claims spiritual content. As a result of this tendency some teachers and principals turn down the proposition, while others, who think it is less likely to cause controversy, call in Buddhist priests only. Others take the opposite course and say they do not want such priests as Buddhism has lost its moral force and is useless. Here in this prefecture the head of the local educational work told me only a few days ago, again, that he was afraid to start anything.

The present nationalistic trend is not unlikely to come into conflict with Christianity in some of its phrases and particularly with certain of the "cruder" forms of our faith. There is, however, little to fear from this source, as the benefits which Christianity has brought are too great. Nor need we be surprised if there is real serious opposition, when we realize what is going on in the West even today, after 1900 years of teaching. Our own treatment of even a bishop during the war, must also make us pause before we blame our Japanese friends.

Coming back to more particular phases of my own work, I thought last spring that when I had finished the translation work I was doing, I might have a little time to throw at the birds. But along comes this school work (two more requests today) and besides that, the nearby work is calling. Last summer the catechist and his wife conducted a baby's funeral in such a way that the grandmother and great-grandmother, who have heretofore been in different want to be taught and to be baptized. They live 30 miles out on the country, part covered by an electric line and the last 5 miles on a wheel. They must be visited every month. A blind young shampooer must also be visited, and he is 30 miles away.

I know this does not look like much, but in bad weather it means 10 miles to walk, and as for time, the Japanese village people never heard of such a thing. They will bob up cheerfully at 10:30 P. M. for a meeting scheduled for 8:00. I waited two hours only the other day for two people. They knew I was waiting, but did not think it of any consequence!

Again last spring a Buddhist priest who said he had heard of me from a friend of mine who lived in the village next to him, came to see me and asked that I come out and talk to his people on some subject like ethics. He came from a village of the former outcasts, now equal before the law, but still socially ostracized, and said that it was known as the poorest, most wretched village in the prefecture. It is some trouble to get there, but I went out the other day to "spy out the land."

My friend took me around, and it was a pretty sad sight, though I have seen dirtier children and frowzier women. It is hard to know what to say to such people, but I'll have to go some day.

But that visit really did help me to see more of what the problem of evangelizing of rural Japan means. Someone must go there and live among those people. I have often wished I were young again, but this time I wanted to be a Japanese as well, for the field seemed prepared.

I talked with my friend about it, and though not a professing Christian his statement was, "such a man, working there, could not only Christianize this village, but all those around here."

As I said, this man is not a Christian, but even though he has not heard a sermon or been to church in years, I found him with a New Testament in front of him when I walked in on him unawares the other day. I wonder if we realize all that means out there, his holding onto his imperfect faith, but there alone all these years, and also doing his best to help these other poor people in the next village.

In lighter vein, when I reached my friend's house, his wife was absent, so we shut the gate and went over the half mile to the village I was to see. On the way we came to a place where the water from recent rains was up over the road. Just then a woman appeared on the other side of the 12 or 15 foot ankle deep stream. "Why, that's my wife!" said my friend, and we greeted each other across the water, and then she, having only sandals on, pulled up her skirts and waded in. My friend pulled up his kimono, and his wife made straight for me. I knew what was up and looked round for a loop hole of escape. She, who weighed maybe 90 or 100 lbs., was going to take my 185 on her back and carry me across. I saw a 4 or 5 foot wide spot and jumped before she could get near.

Less happy than some of these things is the fact that one of our church girls, who came here from an island off the West coast, has had to give up her work and go to Kyoto to care for a wayward sister. Their money ran out and about that time I asked the Rev. Mr. Morris to look them up. They had $3 left, and were alone in a big city. He took charge, found the younger girl needed an operation immediately, got her into a free hospital, etc., and I agreed to foot the bills. Their parents are so poor that they simply cannot help.

Then the mother of the baby we had here two years ago is dying of intestinal T. B. and the father is out of a job. So there is another call. I don't know just how we will manage it, but we always do. These things remind me of a rhyme I read when a small boy, about a Chinese father who had to drown a girl baby and didn't want to. The words run:

"Chalk whang, bo chid"
Which means in their language, "It's got to be did."

And even so, by wasteline is a long way from the wasp variety. I wonder why people want to go to the movies when one can see these and other real tragedies all around. Real life is a lot more interesting than any made-up stuff.

The summer vacation this year was made more pleasant than usual by a visit of some 6 weeks of our daughter Frances. Mrs. Smith's younger brother and a young lady cousin. We had a few days here in Kyoto and Hikone and then three weeks or so up in the mountains before they left on Aug. 6. I came back here while Mrs. Smith stayed to help take care of her father and mother up there.

My first job was helping with a sort of summer school for the people of this deanery. That lasted two full days, ending at noon Aug. 7. Before supper time a new group, from the young men's association of the diocese arrived for a three day conference. When they had gone, the catechist and his wife were about exhausted, so he had three or four days rest before we began on the children's vacation Bible school. But there we discovered our mistake. Many of our children had made other plans, and we had but a bare one-half or less of the number who came last year. When it came to the camps later, it was the same story. Some were out of town, some had other plans and the six or seven boys dropped to three and the eight girls to only two.

It was too bad, and we are feeling the effects of it in our Sunday school this fall. But we learn by experience, and another year, we shall know enough to put our children's activities in the early part of the summer. Just at present, because of some Christian students, we have a fairly good staff and for the first time in several years, think we would like a few more children in the Sunday school.

Our morning congregations keep up well, and the student works goes on apace. Two were received at catechism sometime ago, another is resting a year to get rid of T. B., but is a catechumen. A fourth was received as a catechumen in the sanatorium where he has gone for the same purpose, and a fifth was received here only a couple of weeks ago.

One of my former Sunday school girl who has gone away up beyond Tokyo to visit her sister and help her in the home there a while wrote the other day that she could not get to church, but she missed the service and so Sunday morning she got out her Testament and read that.

All these and any number of others, all little things, show that the work is growing, and the Holy Spirit is working slowly but surely. The catechist and his wife are doing fine work so I have no anxiety on that score any more, and can "thank God and take courage." The heaven of God's power is working in the whole nation in spite of nationalism and all the rest of the troubles and some day the Kingdom will come in Japan.

It is early yet, but I don't think I can send another of these letters before the end of the year, so I'll end this up with best wishes to you all for a Blessed Christmas and a Happy New Year.

St. Louis, Dec. 11.—(AP)—St. Louis has dropped out of the competition for either of the national political conventions.

The timber of Alaska is confined principally to the Tongass and Chugach forest reservations. The Tongass, located in the southeastern part, contains about 30,000 square miles. Because of the inferior quality of Alaskan timber, and the distance to markets, the lumbering industry has not thrived there.

He Calls Resignation Patriotic Duty to Permit Elections

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

Havana, Cuba, Dec. 11.—Cuba's turbulent political situation precipitated the resignation of President Carlos Mendieta today and catapulted Secretary of State Jose A. Barnet into his office, apparently clearing away obstacles to the holding of the January national elections.

Mendieta, yielding to the insistence of powerful political factions which refused to participate in the elections unless he first stepped down, presented his resignation to the cabinet as a "patriotic duty."

Barnet, 71-year-old veteran of the diplomatic service, automatically became president—the republic's seventh since a revolution caused the downfall of Gerardo Machado on August 13, 1933.

The possibility arose immediately that Barnet might be another of Cuba's "presidents for a day."

Vote Within 48 Hours. After reappointing all members of Mendieta's cabinet, he called the ministers and the council of state to meet later in the day in a joint session which the law provides must elect a provisional president within 48 hours.

A background of unsettled political conditions, army activity against kidnapers, and a raid on a radio station accompanied the swift turnover in the government.

The Cuban military headquarters threw 4500 police and soldiers and 300 army intelligence agents into a search for Nicolas Castano, Har-

The officers undertook a close search of the city to free the capitalist, missing since Monday, and to block payment of ransom, reported unconformably to have been set at $300,000—a fund which army leaders feared might go to revolutionaries.

Fourteen men, some reported reliably to have been armed with sub-machine guns, raided radio station CMQ last night and caused equipment damage estimated by authorities at $40,000.

This raid preceded by three hours a scheduled broadcast over station COCO by Mendieta to the United States on the political situation.

Mendieta abruptly cancelled his talk, called his cabinet into extraordinary session and resigned, but officials said the attack on station CMQ had no connection with his actions.

'THRILL' KILLER BECOMES AUTHOR

Nathan Leopold, Held Almost Perfect Convict, Has Article

(Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press.)

Joliet, Ill., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Nathan Leopold—the "almost perfect" criminal—had turned author in his prison cell today to support a theory that convicts are the best judges of whether their fellow prisoners would go straight if freed.

In a magazine article, the slayer of little Bobby Franks told the inside story of how he and other convicts predict which prisoners in the Illinois state penitentiary would reform if paroled.

Leopold wrote under an assumed name and the article has been read in recent weeks by hundreds who did not suspect its authorship.

In it, Leopold hints it may be the first of several articles reporting developments in his parole study as an employee in the office of Prof. Ferris Laune, criminologist and penitentiary actuary.

The slayer recently was disclosed as one of a group of convicts working with Laune in building a "sound scientific footing" for calculating parole risks, but Leopold's article told for the first time in detail how the experiment is being carried on.

It said:

Describes Experiment.

"Laune sets out to investigate the truth of the opinion, very widely held by penologists and prison authorities, that if it were possible to obtain the honest, unprejudiced judgments of an intelligent inmate as to the probability of success of parole of his fellow-inmates, such judgments or 'hunches,' as Laune prefers to call them, would prove to show a much higher degree of association with actual outcome than any prognostic device yet invented."

The first step in the process, Leopold's article said, was "to establish . . . the actual existence and validity of such 'hunches' by an analysis of the correlations of various inmate investigators." This comparison, he said shows "presumptive evidence in favor of the existence of a definite, measurable quality."

The second step, "isolation of the unit factors" behind the convicts' "hunches," Leopold describes as "one of the most ingenious means yet devised for objectifying intrinsically subjective material."

"It consists in the scoring by two inmate investigators of each of a group of 150 subjects by the 'hunch' method. Such scoring is done absolutely independently," the article asserted.

Among the factors taken into consideration in the scoring are the convicts' sentence, his offense, age, nationality, plea, time served, previous criminal record, punishment record, type of personality, the size of his community, his associates, his mental rating, and work record.

Leopold's article said, "the actual existence and validity of such 'hunches' by an analysis of the correlations of various inmate investigators." This comparison, he said shows "presumptive evidence in favor of the existence of a definite, measurable quality."

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

The MIRACLE OF THE BLACK VIRGIN

ALONGSIDE the jagged cliffs of Montserrat, near Barcelona, Spain, is one of Europe's most famous monasteries. Cherished within its walls is an image of the Virgin, carved out of black wood, to which a steady flow of pilgrims comes to pray.

In the eighth century, this image lay denied by the invading Saracens. A century or two later some shepherds heard mysterious voices and saw a strange light over the mountain. The townspeople ventured up, and there they discovered the lost image of the Virgin. But when they sought to move it, the image became too heavy. To them, this was the Virgin's miraculous way of notifying her discoverers that here she wanted to remain.

So a chapel was built for her, and here she has stayed, a refuge to countless of the faithful. The stamp shown here, picturing the Black Virgin, was one of a set issued in 1931 on the 900th anniversary of this event.
